

Don't Eat That! Preventing Foreign Body Ingestion At Your Animal Sanctuary

...never eat, and individuals who live in their caregiver's home may be exposed to different foreign bodies than those who do not). Foreign bodies sanctuary residents may ingest include: Construction...

Saying Goodbye With Respect and Safety At Your Animal Sanctuary

...with them and want time to say goodbye, the resident's psychological needs and well-being must be prioritized when determining if and how much human attention is appropriate. We recommend having...

How To Conduct A Rabbit Health

Check

...of this highly contagious and highly fatal disease. There are many reasons why it may be in your rabbit resident's best interest to live in your home, but if you...

Summer And Hot Weather Considerations For Animal Sanctuaries

...ensure they are comfortable and safe, and to make necessary adjustments before anyone becomes dangerously warm. Don't Forget Species-Specific Needs! Be sure to check out our species-specific Creating A Good...

New Kid On The Block: The New Goat Arrival Guide

...their residents. Take Notes! Remember to keep good track of all intake information and records of any new resident. Find our Resident Record-Keeping guide here. Identify The Specific Needs Of Incoming...

Care Recommendations For Calves

...on our Veterinary Review Initiative here! Calves (baby cows) have their own special care needs to help them reach adulthood in good health and comfort. Depending on how old they...

Resident Drinking Water Considerations At Your Animal Sanctuary

...| Consumer Reports Global Federation of Animal Sanctuaries' Animal Care Standards Preventing Waterborne Germs at Home | Centers For Disease Control And Prevention Biofilms: The Good And The Bad |...

The Importance Of Veterinary

Care At Your Animal Sanctuary

...critical condition. This might include administration of fluids, intravenous medications, or oxygen therapy, among other things. If you have a good relationship with your veterinarian, they may also be able...

Farmed Animal Sanctuary Resident Living Space Temperature Considerations

...get too cold or drafty when temperatures drop. For most species, circulation fans can do a good job cooling a space, but it's best to use fans that are rated...

How to Conduct a Duck Health Check

...good idea to observe the individual without restraining them. Take note of their behavior, activity level, general appearance, how they are standing, and how they are moving. You can read...