

How to Conduct a Turkey Health Check

...possible, before entering your residents' living space), it's a good idea to take a few minutes to observe the group. This allows you to observe group dynamics and to observe...

Potential Duck Health Challenges

...bumblefoot on their “good” side. Because this foot has to bear more weight, the skin can become damaged over time. Without proper interventions, bumblefoot can progress from a minor issue...

How to Conduct A Goat Health Check

...or creams such as a triple antibiotic ointment or silver sulfadiazine cream 1% (SSD) Cotton-tipped applicators Tweezers Headlamp, penlight, or flashlight Thermometer and lubricant (good to have on hand in...

How to Conduct A Sheep Health Check

...lubricant (good to have on hand in case you suspect someone is ill based on health check findings) Towels Stethoscope Clippers (to remove patches of wool if needed) Fly treatments...

How to Conduct a Goose Health Check

...or ocular discharge. Before beginning the actual health check, it's a good idea to observe the individual without restraining them. Take note of their behavior, activity level, general appearance, how...

Potential Goose Health Challenges

...one foot over the other, due to pain or a mechanical leg issue, may develop bumblefoot on their “good” side. Because this foot has to bear more weight, the skin...

Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza: Your Sanctuary And The Law

...with respect to their residents. It's not a matter of how much you love your birds, or how good your care is generally – being a sanctuary makes no difference...

Preparing For And Conducting Resident Introductions

...introductions. If you can't find a standalone resource (i.e., "Conducting Sheep Introductions At Your Animal Sanctuary"), please check out our species-specific arrival guides. Do Your Homework Before thinking seriously about...

Grooming Basics For Equine

Caregivers

...approach them or even if this is a good day to groom them. When you aren't dealing with a care situation that requires immediate attention, it is good to give...

The Open Sanctuary Podcast: Finding Good Information For Your Animal Organization

...Podcasts and Spotify! 25 – Finding Good Information For Your Animal Organization – The Open Sanctuary Podcast Episode Notes
In this episode of The Open Sanctuary Podcast, Senior Advisor Tara...